IMMENSE CONGREGATION ATTENDS DEDICATION OF HOLY FAMILY CHURCH

Catholics and Protestants, Prelates and Laymen
Assemble at Glendale Church to Hear
Bishop Cantwell

ELOQUENT SERMON BY REV. FATHER KIRK
Banquet Marked by Splendid Musical Program,
Directed by Harry Girard From His Couch
and Attended by Many Hundreds

An immense congregation of devout Catholics, members of the Holy Family church of this city and its friends in other cities, also many friendly and interested Protestants, assembled for the formal dedication of the new church at the corner of Elk and Louise streets, Glendale, Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, by the Right Reverend John Joseph Cantwell, bishop of the diocese of Monterey and Los Angeles, assisted by Father Kirk of St. Basil's church, Los Angeles, and Edward J. Whalen, organist and choir-master at St. Basil's and head of the music department in St. Joseph's Academy.

PASADENA WANTS NEXT BIG G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 25.—Twenty thousand Civil war veterans, here for the 56th annual G. A. R. national encampment, will be officially welcomed to the state and city tonight by Governor N. E. Kendall and Mayor Carl M. Garver.

L. J. Kron, department commander of Iowa, will also greet the throngs of old soldiers, while short speeches will be given by heads of the auxiliary organizations.

Robert W. McBride, senior vice commander in chief, is scheduled to deliver the official response.

Every incoming train added its quota from all corners of the nation to the 17,000 veterans who had arrived last night.

Besides the Grand Army men, there were large delegations representing the Women's Relief corps, the Army Nurses' association, Ladies of the G. A. R., Daughters of Veterans, Sons of Veterans and Sons of Veterans auxiliary.

Pasadena, Calif., San Francisco and Milwaukee, are actively in the field for the 1923 encampment.

The question of a successor to Commander in Chief Lewis H. Pilcher of Brooklyn, N. Y., is already being discussed everywhere the veterans gather. One of the early beams launched is that of Judge J. W. Willet of Tama, Iowa, whose friends have begun a campaign.

KIDDIES LIKE OLD STYLE GAMES

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—"Back to the old fashioned sports" bids fair to become the most popular slogan among the kiddies this year.

First it was marble shooting championships, then came the announcement that Jersey City girls are getting ready to challenge all comers at the aged game of manipulating a handful of jacks and a three-cent model rubber ball. Now we have 13-year-old Clifford St. Hill of Woodhaven, N. Y., with the gold medal he won a few days ago from 1999 other boys of the Boy Scout camps on Ranoahwanke Lakes by out-wheeling them on a tin harmonica.

The Jersey playground directors are credited with initiating the jacks and marble contests. Not long ago they put "Buster" Rech down on the blue ribbon list by making him known all over the country as "Marble shooting champion."

They now have 3,000 girls ready to enter the competition to select the New Jersey state champion, who, when they are matched against the best from other parts of the country.

The tournament now starting will last two weeks and will be open to all girls under fifteen.

"Girls are forgetting the old-fashioned games," Park Commissioner Moore declared in announcing the jack contest. "You see them in the city playgrounds playing baseball and basketball just like the boys. The marble contest got our kids to realize that the good old game of jacks was pretty fine after all, and they are playing marbles a great deal now. Jacks are for girls what marbles are for boys. The game is wholesome and invigorating and I believe will rival in interest the matches we put on for the boys."

MEDICK HOME ROBBED.

The home of L. M. Medick of 245 Dayton Court was robbed at about 8:20 last night, and several articles of value were taken. Glendale police are now investigating this case.

REVOLVER STOLEN.

P. E. McCart reported to the Glendale police the theft of a revolver from the Glendale Stables 113 North Glendale avenue, Sunday. Officers Stein and Royle are now trying to recover the missing weapon.

3,599 ENTER CLASSROOMS OF SCHOOLS

Even Distribution of Boys and Girls Reported
by Units

ADJUSTMENTS MADE
Supt. R. D. White Checks
Up Entire Registration of Children

The enrollment in the Glendale city schools at the close of the first week shows a very even distribution of boys and girls and adjustments which have equalized to a considerable degree the attendance, relieving in some measure the congestion at certain schools. The figures as given out by Superintendent White are as follows:

Wilson avenue intermediate: Boys, 233; girls, 241; total, 474.
Glendale avenue intermediate: Boys, 124; girls, 124; total, 248.
Central avenue total, 278.
Columbus: Boys, 237; girls, 216; total, 453.

Pacific avenue: Boys, 196; girls, 173; total, 369.
Broadway total, 332.

Colorado: Boys, 140; girls, 144; total, 284.
Cerritos: Boys, 101; girls, 102; total, 203.

Doran: Boys, 127; girls, 113; total, 240.
Atacita: Boys, 139; girls, 109; total, 248.

Grand View: Boys, 47; girls, 63; total, 110.
Magnolia: Boys, 19; girls, 15; total, 34.

Grand total in grammar grades, 3273.
Kindergarten attendance was: Central 38, Columbus 72, Pacific 54, Broadway 33, Colorado 30, Cerritos 23, Doran 38, Atacita 33, making a total 326, which added to the grades makes a total of all scholars in the schools of 3599.

CONGREGATIONAL FOLKS HEAR OF NEW ORGAN

Wil Be Ready for Dedication of Church About Christmas Time

At the morning service of the Glendale Congregational Church report was submitted by the committee appointed to negotiate in regard to a pipe organ for the new church. On its recommendation the church voted to purchase a pipe organ from the Hinners Organ Company manufacturers, at $1,100. The church also voted to have a special case built which should be designed by Architect Winslow and be in harmony with the interior of the new church. It is expected that the organ will require three months to build, but that it will be ready and installed in time for the dedication of the church about Christmas time.

er O'Neill and of Harry Girard, who had so loyally helped him for many years.

Judge Paul McCormick rejoiced in the "get-together" spirit by men and women of all beliefs as the hope of this age when crime is rampant. He declared the unrest of the world is the church's duty to bring away from religious faith and failure to attend church.

Joseph Scott spoke along similar lines, dwelling on child discipline, which should begin and be maintained in the home, he said, and not be left wholly to the teacher. Some day, when they come to the great white throne parents will be required to give an accounting of how they have met their responsibilities, he declared.

Bishop Cantwell made an impromptu speech of about twenty minutes, in which he thanked the protestants of the community for the friendship and support they have given Father O'Neill in his fifteen years' pastorate, stating that all the churches in his diocese have been built to a considerable extent by non-Catholic money.

He expressed his satisfaction in the presence of the pastors of protestant churches and paid a tribute to Mr. Girard, mentioning his election as Grand Knight of the local chapter Knights of Columbus.

The musical portion of the program as published in the Press of Saturday was directed by Harry Girard from his couch in the piano recess behind a screen of palms, and when it ended at midnight, so great had been the strain he was in a state of nervous collapse.

The hundred and fifty were seated in the banquet hall and an overflow dinner for 30 had to be spread in the cafe below, the diners coming up to hear the addresses.

Mayor Robinson welcomed the bishop, eulogized the work of Father O'Neill and called upon and could only say that this was the happiest day of his life except the day he was ordained. When he got that far, tears checked his utterance, and he sat down amid great salvos of applause.

Father O'Neill was called upon and could only say that this was the happiest day of his life except the day he was ordained. When he got that far, tears checked his utterance, and he sat down amid great salvos of applause.

The musical hit of the evening was the singing by Mrs. Girard of a new composition by her husband, a Japanese ballad, which brought her an ovation of applause.

YOUR NEWSPAPER

When you bought your first car, your first home, secured for the first time—any possession, your impulse was to better it, guard it, set it off with some special care or act of your own.

There are more than FIVE THOUSAND OF YOU READING THIS RIGHT NOW.

By your subscription to the Glendale Daily Press you have made this newspaper YOUR NEWSPAPER.

Are you taking care of it, setting it forth, proudly, as you would another possession?

Just think of this—

In eighteen months you have grown this newspaper from nothing to the largest circulation and most powerful newspaper now, or ever published in Glendale.

It was unprecedented, of course. Hardly believable to the average merchant in Glendale who cannot imagine such growth in so short a time when another, not YOUR PAPER, has not within two thousand of the circulation of this, YOUR NEWSPAPER, although it had an open field for so many years.

IF EACH OF YOU TOLD IT TO THE MERCHANT WHOSE ADVERTISEMENT YOU READ IN YOUR OWN PAPER it would carry conviction that would be valuable to him, priceless to YOUR NEWSPAPER and worth while to you.

IF YOU SPOKE FOR YOUR NEWSPAPER, just once, every five thousand of YOU—spoke just once—to a merchant—don't you think he would want to talk to you thereafter—through HIS COLUMNS—the advertising columns of YOUR NEWSPAPER—every time he has something to sell?

The more he sells, the more YOUR PAPER prospers, the better newspaper YOU have, and the more circulation of currency YOU HAVE.

More than 5000 OF YOU, SUBSCRIBERS, means many more than 5000 readers.

The actual reading public of a newspaper is limited only by the number of each subscriber's family. Thus, with an average of three in each of your families, it means there are MORE THAN 15,000 READERS OF YOUR NEWSPAPER.

FASHION REVUE OPENS TUESDAY AFTERNOON

Begins at Three o'Clock
for Children's Matinee Performance

Relative to the hour at which the beautiful fashion revue matinee to be given Tuesday afternoon at the Glendale theatre will take place, a special announcement is made that it will open at 3 o'clock for the special convenience of pupils in the Glendale schools, to whom the performance will be made of 28c.

The performance will be exactly the same as the evening revue but there will be no reserved seats. Admission to the theatre, however, may be had at 2:30, the regular matinee time, although the fashion show will not start until 3 o'clock.

A dress rehearsal has been held at the theatre, which demonstrated as a beautiful spectacle it will surpass all the promises that have been made.

All the artists in the charming program of music and dancing that have been secured will also be in special costumes furnished by Mrs. Penroy.

Many theatre parties have been arranged for the evening performance, which will be the most brilliant social event in connection with the Tuesday Afternoon club that the organization has had in a long time.

AUTO ACCIDENTS OVER WEEK-END

Five auto accidents happened in Glendale over the week-end. Automobiles driven by W. H. McNeal, 1106 East Colorado street, and William H. Watson of Hollywood, collided at the corner of California and Brand at 5:45 Sunday afternoon. Little damage was done.

John H. Phelps of Los Angeles and C. D. Hellyer of 265 Milford street, were driving machines that collided together at the corner of Orange and Colorado at 5 o'clock Saturday evening. No one was injured.

A car driven by Joseph A. Dunken of 447 West Elk and a machine operated by a party whose name could not be learned, smashed at the corner of Colorado and Central at 5 o'clock Saturday evening. No one was injured and little damage was done.

Percy Field of 601 East Maple street was driving a machine that collided with an auto piloted by T. Furst of 404 Glendale avenue, the accident taking place at the corner of Colorado boulevard and Brand at 5:30 Saturday. Some tin was bent, but no one was hurt.

Cars operated by L. L. Lindsay, 328 North Adams street and George Franklin of 120 North Olive street, met at 1:345 East Colorado boulevard at 4:30 o'clock Saturday. George Franklin was slightly injured. He was taken to his home.

RE IS MASTERED.
Glendale fire department rushed out to a little trouble on East Broadway at 10:55 Tuesday morning. Little damage was done due to the prompt action of the department.

L. H. BRADY MEETS DEATH AT HIS WORK

Shocked by Live, High Voltage Wire While
Installing Plant

FALLS UNCONSCIOUS
He Fails to Revive After Many Hours' Work in Hospital

L. H. Brady, foreman of the Baker Ice Machine company of Los Angeles, was electrocuted while endeavoring to install a local electric refrigerating plant at 1:30 Saturday afternoon. During the progress of his work Mr. Baker accidentally came in contact with a live, high-voltage electric wire, which knocked him to the ground, unconscious. He was rushed to the hospital of the Glendale sanitarium, but upon his arrival there it was found that he was dead.

Mrs. Brady, widow of the unfortunate man, was informed immediately of her husband's death.

DR. CRIST TELLS OF THE COMING OF CHRIST

Dr. C. M. Crist spoke yesterday at the First Methodist church on God's communication, the words of the text being, "The word became flesh and dwelt amongst us, and we beheld his glory."—John 1:14.

Dr. Crist said in part: "Jesus was God letting man see his face, hear his voice and feel the power of his presence. God was, in Jesus, spelling himself out in a language that could be understood by man."

"Once man knew God, closure, in the Garden of Eden; but one day man went away from God; he left home and went into the far country of sin. Further and further away he went until he forgot his mother-tongue. He could not speak to God, and he could not understand God when he spoke to him."

Jesus came to teach again the language of God. "The word became flesh and dwelt amongst us and we beheld his glory." This was God's communication to a lost world.

"Jesus spelled out the big truths of the Gospel. Each word of truth was traced in deep dripping red which spelled salvation. Jesus came to God's Son to lead us back, but as the church comes to the pierce the heavy cross and the piercing crown were necessary that we might wear the crown of glory."

"Gethsemane gives the world the revelation of the breaking heart of Jesus. 'He trod the wine press alone and of the people there were none with him.'"

"Calvary shows to us the tragedy of the ages. Jesus the Son of God nailed to the cross! Such unspeakable sacrifice should break the world's heart."

"But not only did Jesus spell out love and sacrifice on the Divine side, he spelled it out on the plane of the human. He has taught us the heavenly message for a worldly existence. 'If I have loved you,' said Jesus, 'ye should love one another.'"

"Neighborliness is a big word that Jesus Christ brings into a discordant world. The church should go everywhere teaching the parable of the Good Samaritan. Brotherhood and neighborliness will only find their way into the world's life as the church comes to personally represent Jesus Christ."

"Another word written in capitals by Jesus was the word power. Christ met the stubborn, sin-cursed world and overcame it by a Divine power. He said 'All power is given unto me both in heaven and in earth.' He also said to his disciples, 'Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you.'"

"With sacrifice, love and power the church of Jesus Christ goes forth to win the world."

WEBSTER HOME ROBBED.
Thieves entered the home of F. B. Webster of 646 North Orange street last night, but little of value was taken. Detectives Stein and Royle are now working on the case.

LOST HIS EYE IN A HOTEL

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 27.—An appeal to the Robert Trent hotel to return his "every day" glass eye, which he had inadvertently left in his room there, brought John Mortimer Fortescue of Peoria, Ill., a sympathetic reply from the management. Fortescue explained in his note that he had been wearing his "Sunday best" eye ever since and felt "too dressed up" with it.

"Our lost and found department has cared for jewels, umbrellas, canes, brief cases, razors and things like that," wrote the manager, "but this is the first eye we have had the pleasure of handling."

ELECTRIC LINE DRIVE CLOSES SATURDAY NIGHT WITH BIG TAG DAY STUNT

Committee for Saturday to Assemble at Chamber of Commerce This Afternoon to Plan Work of Finishing Campaign

CALL IS ISSUED FOR WILLING WORKERS
Subscriptions for Big Project Are Coming in Slowly, Leaving Many Thousands of Dollars Yet to Be Raised for Bonus

By ALBERT MARPLE

The drive for funds for the electrification of the Union Pacific line on Glendale avenue will close on Saturday night. Tag Day, which will be a good old Glendale whirlwind affair, will be the closing "puller" of the campaign.

Therefore, only five days remain for the people of Glendale to clinch a feature that will prove, if it is secured, the biggest thing Glendale has obtained during its entire history. There are, it is acknowledged, many things that Glendale needs, just as there are features that every community and city needs, but the big thing at this time is the securing of the electric line for Glendale avenue.

The raising of this money for this proposed line is just like paying so much out for insurance—insurance against the increase of fares on the Pacific Electric line in the years that are to come. There isn't a chance in the world of the P. E. raising its rates so long as there is another line running to Glendale with an already lower rate. The railroad commission would have absolutely no grounds on which to grant an increase of rates, providing the P. E. applied for one, while there exists a line running parallel over which a lower rate already existed.

Then, too, if the fares are going to be reduced in the near future over the Pacific Electric line there is nothing that will assist in such a reduction as will the establishment of an electric line on Glendale avenue. The electrification of the Glendale avenue line will create the argument, "If we can run to Los Angeles via Glendale avenue, why should we not be able to do the same thing on the Brand boulevard line?" That would be a very reasonable argument.

Chairman Hayseiden of the combined railroad committee announced this morning that the drive will surely end Saturday night. The intervening time is Glendale's golden opportunity. They are five golden twenty-four hours and if the people of Glendale take anything of their city day they will come to the front with their subscriptions and at least will "come through" when they are solicited. A large amount of money is still needed to put this drive over and this money will not be secured through wishing. It will take earnest, definite work, every man doing all he can both in work and money, to bring the campaign to a successful conclusion.

A meeting will be held at the Chamber of Commerce this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock of the heads of the women's organizations of the city, who will compose the Tag Day committee. The meeting is being called by Dr. Jessie A. Russell, who will be chairman of the committee. At this meeting plans will be made for Tag Day, and everything pertaining to this event will be taken up and discussed. It is the plan of the ladies to make this a "whopper" of an event. Everybody in town is going to be tagged. It is up to every resident of Glendale to have his silver coin ready for he'll surely be called upon to "dig up."

Remember, residents of Glendale, only five days are left in which to make your subscription. It would not be good advertisement for Glendale for the report to get out that she could not raise the small amount of $25,000 to secure another electric line. If this should be the result the outsiders would begin to wonder how Glendale secured her right to the slogan, "The fastest growing city in America."

Mr. Glendale Resident, if you haven't anything special to do during the remainder of this week, drop around at the railroad headquarters, Mrs. Tigh's office, 624 East Broadway, and offer your assistance in gathering the money needed to put over this drive. Workers are needed, and you will surely be given the glad hand.

LOST TRIBES ARE
REV. PRESTON'S
TOPIC

The "Lost Tribes" were discussed by the Rev. Harley G. Preston at the Pacific avenue Methodist church yesterday. He said:

The tribes of Israel were flung into the world by the prophet. They rejected the prophecies and killed the prophets. (Acts 7:51-53). The hope of Israel still lingered, here and there, in lonely places, like the heart of the woman of Sychar (John 4:25-26), but the nation had so far abandoned it that when Christ appeared they were ready to crucify him.

Do you say "this is ancient history"? Then let us bring it up to date. History repeats itself. "The thing that hath been shall be."

One of the postulates laid down by Buckle, in his review of universal history, is that nations, like individuals, have their birth, childhood, adolescence, youth, manhood, infirmities of old age, and death. Whether or no this is inevitable, remains to be seen; but certain it is that the pathway of history thus far has been lined with the ruins of thrones and dynasties that rose, flourished and tottered to their fall.

Are we to add one more to the "graveyard of nations" in Kibuth-jattah? (Numbers 11:34). If nations are but parts of responsible units then let us repeat, "the nation that sinneth it shall die." The God of Israel is our God. "God of our Fathers, be the God of their succeeding sons!"

We have the same Bible that Israel had and more. The law and the prophets are ours, plus the New Testament; as it is written, "God who at sundry times and in divers manners spake to our fathers through the prophets, hath in these last times spoken unto us by His Son" (Heb. 1:1).

The Covenant of Israel is ours also. As a Christian nation—San Salvador, Land of the Saviour—we are under bonds of loyalty to Christ; and these are the bonds of the church.

The World War left us with a national debt that staggers imagination; but in America there is no debt under an obligation that cannot be expressed by the widest stretch of the imagination in gold and silver. "Go up and possess the land," saith the Lord; "every place that the sole of your foot shall tread upon, that have I given unto you."

God save us from insolvency! The church's great asset is the Bible, in which Christ is enshrined as the hope of nations and the children of men. A church that has lost confidence in its Oracles is hopelessly bankrupt. Not only that, but a church whose confidence in its Oracles is consumed in a selfish regard for mere personal salvation is doomed to leanness of soul. Though the miracle of the loaves is ours, the word of the Master is not "eat," but "Give ye them to eat!" The hungry are at our doors, waiting for the living Bread. You will find them in all races and tongues, at home and abroad. "Give ye them to eat."

The church is the saving factor in our national life. Let us not presume too far upon the fact that

MISS SAYRE HAS NOVEL SHOWER

Miss Bertha Sayre of 914 South Central avenue was honored again on Saturday afternoon when Mrs. Roberta T. Young of 469 West Oak street entertained with a silk hose shower. Miss Sayre will become the bride of Lieut. Young on Wednesday at a naval wedding.

Red, white and blue flowers were used in decorating throughout the house. During the afternoon, a most merry contest was staged, the cards being decorated in American flags. Miss Bertha Sayre, honoree, won the prize.

Later in the afternoon, a small battleship marked "U. S. S. Love" was brought in. It contained the many pretty gifts for the bride-to-be.

Following this, white brick ice cream, centered with a blue star, was served with cake and punch.

Guests were Mrs. Ruth Olshausen, Mrs. Gretna Gordary, Miss Helen Sayre, all of whom sang beautiful vocal numbers; Mrs. Virginia Freeman, Mrs. Thomas Graham, Miss Eva Kerr, Mrs. Fred Maynard, the honoree, Miss Bertha Sayre and sisters, Misses Clara, Viola and Helen Sayre; Lieut. Louis Young and his mother, the hostess, Mrs. Roberta T. Young.

'ON THE HIGH SEAS'
AT THE T. D. L.

Ralph Allan starts the new season at his theatre this week and a fitting, smashing get-away, shows three picture this week, one following right after each other—each one a tremendous and alluring production to startle the people of Glendale. Tonight will be the last of the co-starring feature with Dorothy Dalton, Jack Holt and Mitchell Lewis in "On the High Seas," one of the most adventurous, thrilling tales seen here in months. It has been said by writers to be truly one of the season's greatest pictures.

With the coming tomorrow (Tuesday) of "The Masquerader" the Richard Walton Tully feature, starring Guy Bates Post—the highest ever attained in motion pictures has been reached—critics proclaim it "the triumph." Everybody has read the great story, "The Masquerader," and now it has been brought to the screen as the "best of the year" with America's foremost actor, Guy Bates Post playing the leading role, in view of the fact that "The Masquerader" is so well known we do not believe it necessary to dwell on it at length other than to repeat—it is the biggest production yet presented in Glendale.

For Friday and Saturday of this week Ralph Allan has arranged to show Geo. Melford's picture, "Burning Sands," the flaming answer to "The Sheik."

This is indeed a series of entertainments "full of everything necessary to the public's taste and is predicted by Ralph Allan to be the crowning week—a record-breaking week for the T. D. L. theatre. Crowded houses will be the rule at the T. D. L., but we do not want to be one to miss any of these really great shows. Regular admission prices will prevail. Any and all give value received, and then "some."

Typewriting in an airplane flying high in the clouds, with radio machinery reproducing the letters at a receiving station miles away, is the most recent development in wireless, as announced by the U. CHUDLEY-PEARSON
NUPTIALS ARE HELD

Rev. Crist Officiates at Beautiful Wedding of Young Folks

A beautiful church wedding was solemnized Saturday, September 23, at 2 o'clock when Miss Laura Chudley and Roy H. Pearson were married. Rev. C. M. Crist officiating. The ceremony took place at the First Methodist church.

Miss Chudley was a charming bride in a gown of shell pink chiffon over champagne satin, with a side panel of silver brocade and with silver leaves. Her veil was of silk net formed into a cap effect fastened with pearls and orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

The maid of honor, Miss Hazel A. Camp, wore a salmon pink georgette dress with purple and orchid corsage and a giraffe of gold metal. Her bouquet was of pink roses tied with lavender chiffon and she wore a gold and pink picture hat. Mr. Andrew Cooper was best man.

Miss Edna Kirke, Miss Bess Allen, Miss Helen Tobey, Miss Rae Matthews, Miss Kathryn Flanagan, and Miss Ann Frear, were ushers and wore gowns in pastel shades. All are members of the staff of the California bank, Los Angeles, where Miss Chudley was employed.

The church was beautifully decorated with potted palms. The altar rail was banked with carnations, roses and greenery, which was illuminated by three rose colored floor lamps, casting a cheery glow.

Just preceding the ceremony, Mrs. F. J. Templeman, sister of the bride sang, "Oh Perfect Love" by H. T. Burleigh, accompanied at the organ by Mrs. H. Randall. Mrs. Templeman also sang "A Song of Thanksgiving" by Frances Allitsen.

The bride party entered the church to the Wedding March from Lohengrin, played softly on the organ by Mrs. H. Randall. The ushers entered first, followed by the maid of honor, who walked alone. Then came the beautiful bride on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage. They met the groom and best man at the altar.

After the ceremony, a reception for the bride party was held at the home of Mrs. Miller, 911 East Lomita avenue. Refreshments of chicken sandwiches, cake, ice cream, coffee, and punch were served. One feature of the refreshment course was a real English wedding cake baked by the bride's mother.

Following the reception the young couple left on a motor tour of the south. The bride's going away costume consisted of a dark blue canton crepe gown, beautifully beaded, with hat and veil to match. The bride's bouquet was caught by Miss Helen Tobey and the groom's gift to the maid of honor was a silver mounted hand cut perfume bottle.

Mr. and Mrs. Pearson were the recipients of many beautiful gifts including a hand hammered silver flower basket from the staff of the California bank, Los Angeles, and an electric percolator set from Mr. Pearson's business associates at Lake Arrowhead.

Mrs. Pearson is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Chudley, of 907 East Elk avenue. Mr. Pearson is superintendent of the Consolidated Building company at Arrowhead Lake, where a large number of houses are being built. They will make their home there until Christmas.

CHURCH

The auditorium of the Glendale Baptist church was filled to capacity Sunday morning when the rally day exercise of the Sunday school and church was held. It is estimated that there were at least 800 people present, and everyone declared the program the finest of its kind they had ever witnessed.

Each class in the Sunday school endeavored to double the usual enrollment. While in ever instance this was not accomplished the results demonstrated that the efforts put forward were well rewarded.

The principal feature of the morning was the graduation of the classes from the different departments. The first class to receive diplomas was the class from the beginners department, of which Mrs. Lore is principal and Miss Dorothy Howard and Mrs. Harry Chase are teachers. The class consisted of Charles Hayland, Karl Schwendener, Donald Jewsbury, Jack Moody, Marion Howard, Roland Headley, Carter Circle, Virginia Russell, Harriet Elliott, Margaret Chase, Rosalee Kirk, Elton Sawyer. The motto of this class was "Jesus Bids Us Shine."

The next class to receive diplomas was the Primary pupils, who went into the Junior department. This department is under the supervision of Mrs. J. L. Gray. The principal money-cumbersed father, Sudlow, while the teacher of the girls is Miss Marion Rich. The class consisted of Charles Flier Elliott, Kenneth Paul Elliott, Bromley Irvine Marple, Lloyd Bernard Howland, Sally Gray, Roberta Hubbard, Catherine Beck, Celia Mesban, Nellie Howard, Catherine Evans, Barbara Gill, Eleanor Russell, Ruth Staffan, Barbara Stamp and Jeannette Schwendener.

Next came the graduating class of the Junior department who stepped up to the Intermediate department. Mrs. E. E. Ford is superintendent of this department, and Miss Faith Tarling and Mrs. F. I. Marsh are teachers. The class consisted of Evelyn Bowers, Constance Boynton, Edith Elliott, Genevieve King, Thelma Light, Thelma Holmberg, Hazel Howard, Edith Akers, Marion Eddings, Ella May, Charlotte, Wesley Kent, Charles Temple, Melville Walker, Howard Smith, Norman Rich, Elden McElman, Otis Christmas, Carter Booth, Richard Donaldson and Ernest Tarr.

There was congregational singing and vocal and instrumental numbers from the various members of the school following the graduation exercises.

At the regular morning service Rev. E. E. Ford, pastor of the church delivered the morning discourse on "Rally Day." An anthem by the choir, which was under the direction of H. W. Carver and a vocal solo by Mrs. H. W. Carver, constituted the musical attractions of the morning preaching service.

In the evening Rev. Ford preached on the subject, "Pass it on." At this service the Misses Miller and Mrs. Gaser, a ladies quartette, rendered a selection.

A FEMALE QUIXOTE IS 'THE MATCH
BREAKER'

As a female detective who engages in the novel occupation of rescuing unwary males from designing and unacceptable women, Viola Dana scored again in "The Match Breaker," a Dallas M. Fitzgerald production for Metro which yesterday started a three days run at the Glendale theatre.

Miss Dana is at her best in such a picture as it gives her every opportunity to exercise to the full that vivacity and characterization for which she is noted. The story itself is away from the beaten path of the usual movie entertainment and is staged in a way to keep the audience in suspense until the last scene.

In the role of Jane Morgan, Miss Dana plays the part of a girl who, successful in stealing other girls' sweethearts, starts into make that her professional calling. Her first case involves her in untangling the mix-up of a father and son and in unearthing the schemes of the designing females some extremely interesting problems are created.

Miss Dana portrays the character with enthusiasm and understanding. Jack Perrin as Thomas Butler, Jr., furnishes a good representation of a lively rich young man while Edward Johnson is the typical money-cumbersed father. Others in the cast are Julia Calhoun, Wedgwood Nowell, Kate Tonery, Lenore Lynard, Fred Kelsey and Arthur Millette. It was adapted by Arthur J. Zellner from Meta White's story.

NAZARENE TENT IS WORKING HARD

Rev. Clark former district superintendent of Iowa preached a stirring sermon at 3 and 7 p. m. on Sunday. His afternoon talk was from the 3rd chapter of Habakkuk, second verse, and showed that the prayer of Habakkuk was that God's work might be revived and in wrath remember misery. In the evening at 7:30 he preached from the 14 chapter of Exodus, the 15 verse, "Why criest thou unto me. Speak to the children of Israel that they go forward." He said it means much to get a good start in leaving the enemies territory and then go forward to the full possession of our inheritance which is holiness of heart and life.

Rev. Clark is the evangelist in this special revival effort. Meetings are held every night except Saturday. Sunday meetings at 2 and 7:30 p. m. Everyone is welcome to come and bring their friends.

Evangelist L. E. Kavaney is expected to preach tonight.

God "hath not dealt so with any people." His word is yea and amen. "If ye seek me I will be found of you; if ye forsake me, I will cast you off."

For what we have already received against the wicked roll call of the 19 kings we gratefully name our four mighty, Washington, Lincoln, Roosevelt and Wilson with another who has joined them on their knees, we praise God and take courage for the future. In the council for disarmament tribute was paid to the Prince of Peace. And the word went forth "swords into plowshares!" Let us pray that this may ever be, though it does seem that some parts of the world have not as yet had enough of war.

But no council can ever disarm the church of her one weapon, or absolve her from the responsibility of its constant use, namely "the sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God."

As to our national anthem, there is a grave difference of opinion. We are divided betwixt three—an embarrassment of riches—and all three are open to serious objection on the part of patriotic unbelievers. "The Star Spangled Banner" is tribute to the God "who hath made and preserved us a nation;" the hymn "America" bids us praise Him as the "Author of liberty;" but "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" strikes the highest note of loyalty and sets the pace for us as a nation.

"In the beauty of the lilies Christ was born across the sea With a glory in His bosom that transfigures you and me. As He died to make men holy, let us die to make men free; His truth is marching on!"

May God help us to keep in step with that March of the Gospel, of Jesus Christ, the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth. Our work as a part of the Christian church in America is marked out for us. Let us press forward, thankful for the great opportunities that await us.

UNION HI NOTES OF THE CLASSES

Music Teacher Resigns; Algebra Overcrowded; New Science Class

Miss Maenell, a new teacher in the music department at Glendale high, finds that she is not strong enough to carry on the work and has resigned her position. It will therefore be necessary to secure another teacher for piano, musical appreciation and sight singing.

The registration at Glendale high for algebra has been so heavy it has been necessary to organize a new class, which will be compelled to work in the cafeteria for lack of any other class room.

A new class which has been necessary to organize in general science will have to recite in the chemistry lecture room.

Four new students were enrolled this, Monday morning, bringing the registration to about 1350.

The monthly meeting of the Teachers' club of the high school will be held this afternoon at 4:15, to consider a general program for the coming year. It will be conducted by Paul Webb, president.

PRESBYTERIAN
PARTY

The elders of the Glendale Presbyterian church entertained the past elders of other Presbyterian churches who are now members here, at a delightful beefsteak dinner on Saturday evening at Brookside park. Wives of the elders were also present. The guests numbering about 50 in all.

A delicious four-course dinner was served, all being prepared by the men. They served it in real banquet style.

Following the dinner a few speeches were given. H. L. Finlay welcoming the elders into the church. Rev. Edmonds, pastor, also gave a few words of welcome. Dr. Boyd gave a response from the past elders, stating how glad they were to be with this church.

This closed the evening's program and all the ladies agreed that the men were splendid cooks.

BURBANK OFFICER IS NOW DEPUTY SHERIFF

Glen Wilson, Efficient Officer, Receives Appointment

Glen Wilson has resigned his position as deputy city marshal of Burbank in order to accept a position as deputy sheriff of Los Angeles county and has started to work at his new job.

Deputy Wilson's new duties include work as bailiff at the county court sessions and also special assignments. He is on duty from 8 o'clock in the morning until 5 o'clock in the afternoon, the number of his working hours and also the salary of his new job being better than the old one.

Wilson is a very efficient officer and is deserving of the promotion. His record is similar to that of the Royal Northwest Mounted police, who were in the habit of "getting their man."

Deputy Sheriff Wilson will continue to make his home in Burbank, his residence being at 405 Verdugo avenue.

His new work comes under the civil service department. He took the examination for deputy sheriff a few months ago. His successor here has not been appointed.

SEYMOUR THOMAS'
HAVE SUNDAY TEA

Mrs. S. Seymour Thomas entertained at tea Sunday afternoon, Mrs. Stephen Raymond, Mrs. Fred Zellie, Commander Tricou of the U. S. battleship Mississippi, and Dr. Foote of Long Beach.

Let a Bank Book
Shelter You from Life's Troubles

You wouldn't sympathize much with a man whose house was flooded by rain and storm because he didn't put a roof over it. Yet many people neglect to build a shelter against the storms and misfortunes of life when they know the surest of all shelters is a Savings Account.

If you should be thrown out of work, have sickness in the family, or suffer any other misfortune, your bank book will prove your best friend in time of trial. And a Bank Account can prove mighty helpful when the one great opportunity of your lifetime comes. You know how hard it would be to let it pass because you lacked a little capital!

The sooner you start saving, the sooner you'll be prepared to meet squarely anything that may come your way.

Purely Personal

Mrs. Edward L. Payne, a former resident of Glendale, is the guest of Mrs. Oliver Clark. Mr. Clark, who has been trying a case in Santa Rosa, returned to Glendale Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Campbell are leaving today for Palo Alto to enter their son, Daniel Campbell, Jr., in Stanford university. They expect to return next week.

Mrs. M. J. Miner of 458 Ivy street has just returned from a few days' stay with friends at Long Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Pixley of 400 West Harvard have just returned from a vacation at Catalina.

Mrs. M. Keck of 604 East Chestnut street is a patient at the Glendale Research hospital.

H. E. Woodward of 425 West Harvard street underwent a minor operation this morning at the Glendale hospital and sanitarium.

Mrs. George Harris of 1208 South Mariposa street underwent a minor operation at the Glendale hospital and sanitarium, this morning.

Mrs. O. E. Von Oven, wife of the well-known real estate man, underwent a major operation this morning at the Glendale hospital and sanitarium.

Jack Stone of 700 East Lomita avenue had his tonsils removed this morning at the Glendale Research hospital. He is the son of Mrs. B. Z. Stone.

Mrs. Roy T. Patrick of 617 East Windsor road is a patient at the Glendale Research hospital.

Manly Warren, son of E. G. Warren, the real estate man of 504 Salem street had his tonsils removed this morning at the Glendale Research hospital.

Mrs. K. K. Wales of 415 Fernando court went home yesterday, after being operated upon last week at the Glendale Research hospital.

MRS. HAGOOD TO BE FEATURE ORGANIST

Mrs. L. N. Hagood of 216 North Orange street has been engaged as feature organist for the T. D. & L. theatre. She will fill the position vacated by Mr. Altup who has gone to Pasadena.

Mrs. Hagood is a composer as well as a finished musician and has taken part in many musical activities here and was formerly Curator of the Music section of the Tuesday Afternoon club. She was a Charter member of the Glendale Music club and was their first secretary. Mrs. Hagood was also instrumental in starting a Glendale Community Chorus right after the war, which afforded a great deal of pleasure.

Mrs. Hagood has had a fine musical education and has played the piano organ for about 15 years. She states, "My work will not cause me to give up any of my club activities. Mr. Allen of the T. D. & L. theatre has been kind enough to excuse me for one-half hour both tomorrow afternoon and evening to play the opening chorus; which I composed, for the Pandory Fashion Show at the Glendale theatre."

"For the last time," he yelled, going almost purple in the face, "I ask you the simple question, 'What is a fortification?'"

Robinson of Pasadena acted as piano accompanist.

Mrs. Russell is a tall, striking brunette, whose tallness was accentuated by a gown of gold color velvet which touched the floor and was slashed into panels at the bottom. With a rear panel which formed a train. Her reading was thoroughly enjoyed and she will be welcomed in club and other circles.

Among the club ladies present were Mrs. Daniel Campbell, Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, Mrs. A. D. Cross, Mrs. Oliver Clark, Mrs. Charles Temple, Mrs. Andrew Findlay, Mrs. C. O. Pulliam, Mrs. W. E. Evans, Mrs. Beach, Mrs. Henry, Mrs. C. A. Parker, Mrs. A. S. Chase.

WATER FOR THE 565 BEST BABIES THIRSTY TOLD BY EDMONDS NOW ENTERED IN RACE

Rev. W. E. Edmonds preached Sunday morning at the Presbyterian church upon "Showers of Blessing," from the passage Is. 44:3-5, which begins with the words, "I will pour water upon him that is thirsty."

Wherever we read of water, floods, we recognize the type of the Holy Spirit. There are wonderful word-pictures in the verses. Look first at the dry field. Travelers coming down our state gaze at stretches of barrenness, for months without rain. But we say, "Just wait till the showers come." And the dusty towns, and the trees and the roads—we say, "Wait, the showers will wash all." Then the flowers and all lovely verdure appear, just because the showers have come.

So the prophet says. Look out upon the people seeking for the things of the world, the barren, sinful world. Can anything be done for such? "Wait for the showers!" Some folks think they have something to help, in education and organization—"We are living in a wonderful age of improvement and progress." Yet you know the truth is, all this does not bring one soul any nearer to God. There has never been a time when the church was so utterly organized and developed as today. Experts are saying, "Now you wait this wonderful machine." Yet the Literary Digest tells us that in this country there are 27 million children not enrolled in any Sunday school, and two out of three are receiving no religious education whatever; and the paper inquires, "How long can a nation endure thus?"

Children are being taught modern education, but it is all top and no root, to try to educate the head and leave the heart unchanged. Out of the unregenerate heart comes wrong life. You can't change a life out of an unchanged heart.

The prophet brings a great message, "I will pour water upon him that is thirsty," that wants; this message is only to him that desires. "There is a fountain filled with blood, Drawn from Emmanuel's veins, And sinners, plunged beneath that flood, Lose all their guilty stains."

Jesus didn't go to the cross for the few drops, but for a flood. O that God would send His flood-tides, sweeping away wrong and waking the world!

300 ATTEND THE CHRISTIAN ASSEMBLY

The Central Christian church school, one of the most up-to-date Sunday schools in Southern California, added an entirely new feature to its work yesterday, when under the direction of Supt. Floyd Mercer, it observed its first quarterly general assembly in the new building. This school is in reality seven schools, for each department is an end to itself. Once every three months or so, review Sunday, this general assembly is held in order to get all departments together and to increase school spirit.

The feature of yesterday was the dramatization of the rebuilding of the walls of Jerusalem by Nehemiah. Mrs. Bertha J. Mackay, superintendent of dramatization, had arranged the presentation. Kenneth Greenlaw took the part of King Artaxerxes and H. E. Cox, the role of Nehemiah. Ezra, the scribe, was taken by Frank La-drop and about a dozen other intermediate children represented characters recorded in the account from the book of Nehemiah. The uniform Sunday school lessons for the quarter covered the history of this event in the history of Jerusalem.

This school is setting its goal for 500 in attendance on Rally day, which is next Sunday. Rev. C. A. Cole states that an average of about 10 persons each Sunday are being added to the roll of members.

ATLANTIS

The legendary island of Atlantis, variously called Atlantis and Atlantica, is mentioned by Plato in the Timaeus wherein it is described as an island and a continent larger than Asia Minor and Libya combined and located just beyond the Pillars of Hercules (Strait of Gibraltar). This supposed lost continent would, therefore, have been located not far from Africa and Spain in the Atlantic ocean. According to the story, this country was a powerful kingdom 11,000 or 12,000 years ago, its armies overrunning all the countries bordering the Mediter-

Judging Will Begin First Week in October With Due Notice

Applications for entrance in the best baby contest have now brought the total to 565, a promise that the total will reach 600 before the contest closes the 30th of September.

Judging is to take place the first week in October and the babies will be notified when and where they are to appear for the best baby review.

It will be a great gathering to which many mothers whose babies are past the age for entry will doubtless be seeking admission, for all the world loves babies, and when the babies are of the quality of the youngsters from the Glendale district, which includes Eagle Rock, Burbank, La Crescenta, Montrose, etc., the lovers are justified in trying to crawl under the flap of the tent to get a peep at them.

It should be realized that the time is growing very short and mothers should present their photographic orders to the local photographers without delay as there is certain to be congestion at the last if this is not done. They have been working night and day to keep up with the demands made on them and are ready to keep on working hard until the contest is finished. The parents must do the rest.

FRED DODGE IS NEW BENEDICT

The many friends of Fred Dodge, formerly of Glendale, will be surprised to learn of his marriage on Wednesday, September 20, 1922 to Miss Helen Phillips of Santa Ana. The ceremony was a quiet, home affair, with only relatives of both families in attendance. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Cornelia Phillips of Santa Ana.

Mr. Dodge is a graduate of the class of 1919, Glendale Union high school and is very well known here. He was an active member of the high school student body, and has a host of friends. Mr. Dodge now has charge of the water department of the Janss Investment Company at Belvedere.

The young couple will make their home at 215 West Alhambra Road, Alhambra.

91ST DIVISION REUNION IS SET FOR TUESDAY

Tomorrow is Ninety First Division Reunion Day—the historic September 26th four years ago, when the Ninety first "jumped off" in the Argonne-Meuse offensive and by nightfall were the victors. Tomorrow is a day of remembrance. Employers here are going to, grant the World War heroes of the 91st Division a leave of absence tomorrow afternoon so they may attend their Third Annual Reunion. The day means much to the Powder River boys. The committee in charge of the celebration has left out all formal events so as to give the comrades long separated a chance to find each other and in the strong handclasp and catch in the throat experience to the true joy of reunion.

The big gun will be fired at six thirty P. M. at the Los Angeles Athletic Club. Seventh and Olive street where the Monster Division Banquet will take place. Separate sections will be provided for each outfit. Ninety first boys living here should wire or phone their reservations in at once to Louis Ruff, L. A. C. Los Angeles, Calif. This year you may bring your ladies for its going to be a Reunion De Luxe. Generals and the rest of the high ranking officers will have nothing on the buck privates. All will eat at the same tables in one of the finest clubs in Southern California and afterwards dance at one of the grandest of Grand Balls ever given in this section. The dances will be given by Los Angeles Post No. 8 of the 91st Division at the K. C. ball room 614 South Flower St. The public will be given a chance to honor their World War heroes by attending this ball.

Plans are under way to form another 91st Division Association of Southern California at tomorrow's reunion, with a separate unit in each city of the South.

Reception Committee for Mrs. Hobson Is Appointed by C. of C.

The reception committee named today by the chamber of commerce to greet Mrs. Richmond F. Hobson, when she arrives with her husband to attend the forum dinner tomorrow, is as follows:

Dr. Jessie A. Russell, Mrs. W. C. Mabey, E. B. Moore, Miss Eva Danahy, Roy Kent, Mrs. M. L. Tigh, Jesse Smith, Mrs. V. M. Hollister, A. H. Montgomery.

We are the heirs of all the ages in the foremost files of time.—Tennyson.

TO PRISON FOR LIFE

The members of a jury, after finding two men guilty of murder, this involving a life sentence for both, have undertaken to reveal what they mean by a life sentence. In their view it has exactly the significance expressed by the words. It does not seek to bestow the privilege of leaving jail at the pleasure of a board that is in the habit of interpreting a sentence as something different from that which was in the mind of the court. In this state the man sentenced to prison for life generally knows that in escaping the death penalty he has been the recipient of undeserved clemency. He knows also that a life sentence is something else.

A life sentence should imply the desire of society to keep the prisoner receiving it, in prison until death. This is, indeed, its distinct implication. It expresses the will of the jurors and the judge, acting in the capacity of protectors of society and as administrators of the law. If the power to change this sentence rests with a prison board, then the sentence loses all force, and the passing of it becomes an idle formality.

WILHELM'S COMING MARRIAGE

The proposed marriage of the ex-kaiser is being erected into an event of world importance. As a matter of fact it has neither this importance nor any other. It is, in truth, an episode of no consequence whatever except to the parties immediately involved. If a widow with five children, and a fortune, desires to become the wife of Wilhelm and step-mother to his bunch of sons, that is her risk.

It is on the ground that the wedding will be a blow to the monarchists that so much attention is being devoted to it. It is regarded as certain to keep the ex-kaiser off the throne. Doubtless he will stay off. There is nobody competent to set up a throne and keep it from tottering while the ex-kaiser climbs aboard. He will be without a throne to the end of the days, but it is unfair to blame the widow. She has not injured the monarchical cause. There was no possibility of injuring it. Already it had been so deeply injured as to have responded by being dead. If there is still a faint hope of restoring the monarchy, it does not include a hope that a Hohenzollern will be its ruler. The head of the house has demonstrated his unfitness, and the sons never have been suspected of being fit.

Doubtless the wedding will merit a place in the society column, but trying to attach it to the dignity of a world affair is attempting the impossible.

THE RICHEST MAN

On Wall street authority, Henry Ford is said now to be the richest man in the world. He could capitalize his business at two billion dollars and pay 5 per cent dividends on the amount. The figures ought to set Wall street to thinking. Only a short time ago the magnates of that financial region were telling how they had Ford at their mercy. He had not played according to the rules of the game, and they intended to declare him out.

Ford is an extraordinary man. As it is inevitable that some individual will be richer than any of the others, it probably is satisfactory that the role has fallen to Ford. He was not trained as a financier but as a mechanic. He made a cheap type of vehicle which met the needs of the country. He sold it at a figure so modest that no competitor has followed the price. While his factory has grown to magnitude, he has been fair with the thousands of men working for him. As a rule he has paid more than the union scale of wages. He does not believe in cheap labor.

In many respects Ford is impractical. His effort to bring the great war to a close was a spectacular bit of folly. In a paper owned by him he permits vicious racial attacks. On the stand in a libel case he displayed under cross-questioning, an ignorance of history and of current events that would have shamed a ten-year-old schoolboy. But he has made money, not by trickery, not by connivance with any group, but by inspiring and doing great things of a material sort.

It is more pleasing to contemplate such a fortune as Ford's, with its wide influence, its steady tribute to the wage-earner, its stimulation of kindred industries, and its direct benefits to thousands, than to think of the millions owned by men who never have toiled, and whose wealth has come through speculations and exactions from the public.

RUSSIAN PRETENSE

Americans have sent food and medicines to the Russians in Ukraine. They have done this with the knowledge that need and suffering existed there. Doubtless many of the individual beneficiaries have been thrilled by gratitude. No expression of such sentiment has come from any soviet regime. Now that Turkey is at war, and being at war against the civilization that the bolsheviks despise, out of Ukraine has been sent a complete medical unit to the aid of the Turks. Perhaps the disposition to bite the hand that feeds one, never was more succinctly illustrated.

There is no doubt that Russia's rulers are ready to assist the Turks. The sum of their ability to do so has not been determined. Threats to "sweep the Balkans" are heard freely enough, but the real capacity of Russia to sweep anything, must as yet be considered in doubt. When Americans were dispatching supplies to Russia, there was not even a remote thought that they were doing more than relieving local distress due to soviet rule. It would seem now that part, at least, of the stores forwarded were finding a destination of which the donors never had dreamed.

If Russia is to send a huge army, the question of its support comes to mind. It has been unable to provide its own subjects with bread. Charity has intervened between the Russian babes and starvation. The army has lived well enough, subsisting, without labor, on loot. This method might serve while the army remains in Russia and the booty is accessible. If it were to undertake the task of sweeping the Balkans it would be far from its base of supply, and from chance to pilfer from American contributions. It has promised Turkey "moral" support, and perhaps with this the Turks will have to be content.

Lamenting over the destruction of forests does not particular good. Every year the process goes on. There seems to be no prospect of any change until the forests have been exterminated.

There is talk of a requirement that all drivers of commercial trucks shall be twenty-one. Probably this would work a hardship on some competent and careful drivers. A test of fitness, regardless of age, but of course barring childhood, perhaps would better conserve the safety of the public.

ALCOHOLIC HUMOR

By DR. FRANK CRANE

I have never been able to see anything funny about a drunken man.

There is something deficient, I suppose, in my sense of humor. If I had lived in the good old days, when all the smart ladies and gentlemen lined the streets of London to watch a half-naked woman dragged at the tail of a cart and found in this spectacle something highly diverting, I fear that all I should have got would have been sickness at the stomach.

To me a maudlin, slaving moron more or less poisoned by alcohol is just about as funny as a man falling in an epileptic fit or a child writhing with colic.

They say that Mr. Bryan, when he was in New York the other day, attended the show called "The Old Soak." When asked by a reporter what he thought of it he refused to express an opinion. His reticence is as commendable as it is rare.

I saw the same show myself the other night, and to me it was simply disgusting. Every man to his taste, of course, and I notice that the professional critics seemed to rate this play rather high.

The gentleman who sat next to me disappeared at the end of the second act, remarking: "This is fierce!"

I take some comfort in the rule recently established by the vaudeville houses that there are to be no more jokes by their funny men about bootlegging. At least, this gives me some grounds for hope that my detestation of a drunkard is not wholly narrow, bigoted and bourgeois.

Alcohol is plain poison. To be sure, it is poison with several thousand years of tinsel tradition behind it, and Anacreontic verse, but it is poison just the same.

It is the most dangerous poison in the world, because it imitates in its effects the very finest expressions of the human spirit. It produces a very good counterfeit of the most ennobling sentiments one can entertain, such as heroism, love and religion. But the fatuous recklessness it gives as a substitute for heroism, the maudlin sentiment or brutal lust it gives as a substitute for love, and the passing exaltation it gives as a substitute for religion, resemble the real thing about as much as the modern French aluminum coins resemble gold.

And then the whole thing is too tragic. In one day recently eleven people died in Brooklyn from drinking bootleg whisky. Whether prohibition was the cause of this is aside from the point. Whatever the cause, the effect is horrible.

I suppose I am too young and unsophisticated, but when I sit in an audience of a thousand people and see them sniggering at a reeling drunkard I cannot keep out of my mind these eleven corpses, and the women and children who stand about their coffins. I cannot forget the thousands of keen and brilliant minds that have been tripped to ruin by this ancient fraud. I cannot forget the broken lives, sheer, stark horror, and the unmeasured misery that have come out of the festive bottle.

Sots often exhibit noble sentiments, drunkards sometimes do fine deeds, and alcohol along with opium and hashish have produced considerable first-class literature. But travellers from the Philippines tell us that often upon the breast of the field and stinking stream there bloom the most beautiful flowers.

I am sorry. I want to miss no good laugh. But I suppose my bringing up was wrong. I can't laugh at a man who falls and breaks his arm, and I can't laugh when a man falls down and breaks his soul, even though the bystanders are gleeful.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

GETTING IT OVER

Charles F. Coffin Points Out the Way

"The topics on which you have suggested my commenting are not half so important as 'The Ability to Think and Speak Clearly and Convincingly on One's Feet'." remarked my companion quickly and decisively after I had called off a partial list of themes, and one of which I should have been glad to discuss.

Mr. Coffin, whose opinion I was soliciting at a luncheon-interview in the Indianapolis chamber of commerce, is vice president and general counsel of the State Life Insurance company, and is one of the founders of the International Chamber of Commerce. He continued:

"Any man can speak in public if he has the courage to fail often enough. No man should expect to be a speaker and not experience failures at the outset. It is not easy to organize one's thoughts, think clearly on one's feet, and get over in clear, direct, and convincing language a message that will move the other fellow to one's way of thinking. But the person that succeeds in this has won power."

"Do you lay unusual stress on a man's ability to be a forceful public speaker?" I asked.

"I have just said," replied Mr. Coffin, "that it means power. Those who possess this accomplishment are the men who lead. They force their policies at board meetings; they sway the masses at political gatherings, town meetings, and conventions; they often control legislatures and shape the destinies of nations; they turn skeptics to believers; are masters of the weak; and, with truth and frankness as their guides, win in great battles where intellects and wills are pitted against other intellects and wills equally as strong. Truth and frankness are prerequisites of powerful speaking."

Mr. Coffin concluded his remarks by saying that the leaders of every community are those who are able effectively to get over their ideas by means of the spoken word.

(Next interview, Tuesday, Oct. 3.—Professor H. L. Sensemann, Department of English, University of Michigan.)

THE LISTENING POST

A man looked out over a great city. With tall buildings and busy streets and twinkling lights.

Cars were clanging to and fro. The smoke of industry arose from many chimneys.

There came sounds of revelry and laughter from pleasure seekers.

The city held its hundreds of thousands of people.

Rich and poor, high and low, sick and well, strong and weak, all were among the populace.

The city was an impressive thing to look at from the roof of a sky scraper.

For it held so much of the romance, tragedy, humor and pity of life.

And the man's companion was an enthusiast for cities.

He saw glory in size.

He was inspired by numbers.

He took pride in length and breadth and distance.

And he said:

"What a wonderful city and what a wonderful land that builds and supports it."

And the man said:

"It is majestic, yes. Wonderful, perhaps, as indicating what mere growth is possible."

And the man's companion said:

"It is the greatest civilization ever known that can produce such cities."

And the man replied:

"There was ancient Rome. That was a wonderful city. And that was a marvelous civilization in a way. Yet ancient Rome is ruin except for a few imperishable things whose structure still survives."

"What then is the test of a civilization?" asked the other man. "Is it growth?"

"No," said the man, "for growth is not the test of a man. Beyond a certain normal size growth may be an evidence of disease."

"Is it luxury and easy living?"

"No," replied the man, "for luxury and easy living lead to decay."

And still the man looked out over the great city with the hum of traffic and the twinkling lights and the clanging of cars and the smoky chimneys.

And he wondered of the future of it all.

For cities had been and had been destroyed and civilizations had been and had been destroyed and nations had risen and fallen and perished.

And he wondered again if people in the great city were stronger, happier and higher spirited than they were a hundred years ago.

Whether human life was better for the living now than a hundred years ago.

Whether human courage was greater.

Whether human happiness was more or less.

And then he decided that that was after all the test of a civilization:

Whether people were healthier, happier and higher spirited as the years go by.

As education becomes more general.

As comfort and luxury increase.

And he decided that the value of a civilization was not to be estimated by wealth.

By the height of buildings.

By the density of smoke from the chimneys.

By the multiplicity of motor cars.

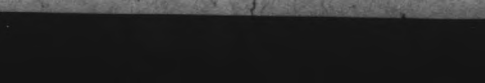

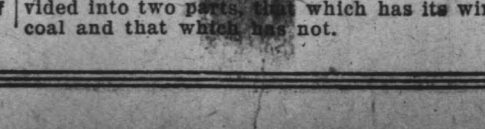

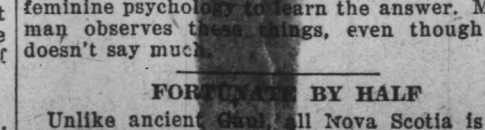

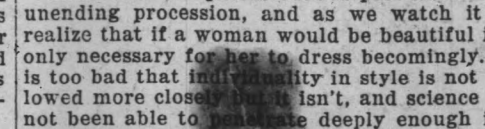

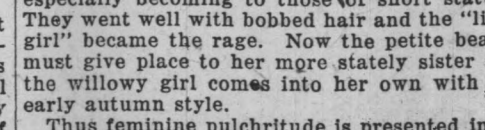

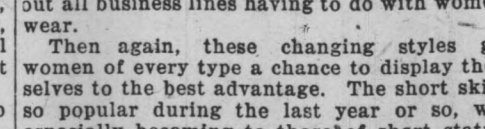

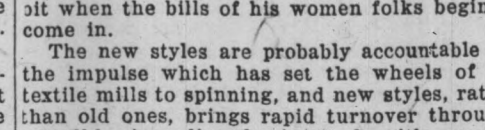

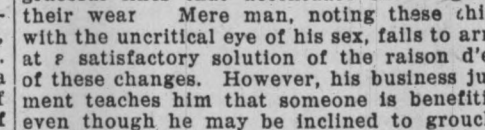

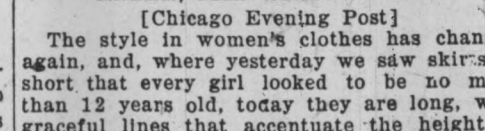

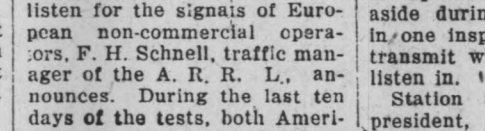

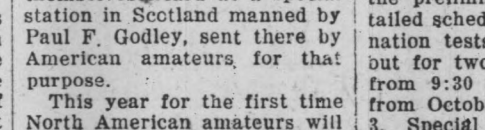

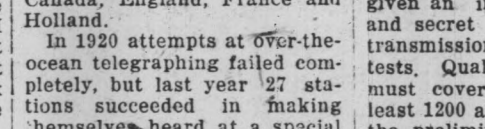

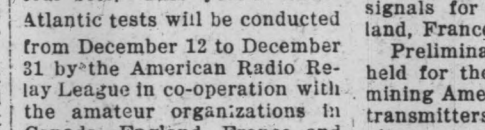

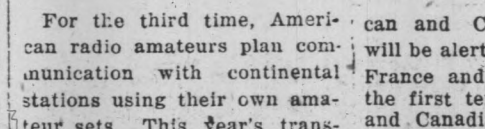

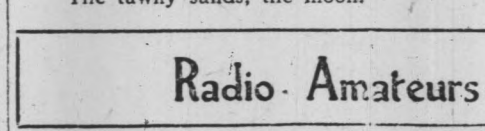

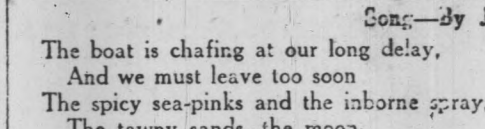

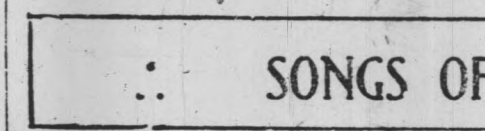

By the brightness of theater lights.

These are incidents.

The real civilization has its roots in the human spirit.

And as that spirit is high and splendid or weak and frail, so a city is great or merely bloated.

BRANCH LIBRARY HEAD DISCUSSES HIS BOOKS

"A Christian's appreciation of other faiths," by Rev. Gilbert Reid shows in a striking way how the basic principles of Christianity are being stressed today rather than an empty creed.

While written by an ordained minister in the Presbyterian church it consists of a series of lectures in the conferences of the "World's great religions" in the International Institute of China given under the auspices of the Billings Lectureship controlled by the Unitarian association of Boston. The different faiths of which he shows an appreciation are Taoism, Buddhism, Islamism, Confucianism and the Jew. He also gives a Protestant's appreciation of the Church of Rome, a Trinitarian's appreciation of the Unitarian and appreciation of Jesus Christ by skepticism.

"A Gentleman With a Duster," in his "Painted Windows" deals with the religious question, especially in England, by making a study of religious personalities. The object of the book is to try and discover in this way some of the needs of the church at the present time and as he conceals his identity under the nom-de-plume he does not hesitate to present a very frank and fair characterization of some prominent persons of widely different faiths including Bishop Gore, Dean Inge, Father Knox, a Catholic; Dr. Jacks, a Unitarian; Miss Maude Royden, a social worker and preacher in the Temple Church of London, and Bramwell Booth, head of the Salvation army.

Frank Tannenbaum in his "Wall Shadows" makes a study in American prisons. Having been a prison inmate himself he speaks with authority and deals especially with the new method of "prison democracy" which has been successfully employed of late years.

Miss Maude Royden in her "Sex and Common Sense" handles the subject in a bold, frank and sympathetic manner and yet holds the highest ideals as possible of attainment.

Elbert Hubbard's "Little Journeys to the Homes of Famous People" in four vols. deals with American authors, eminent painters and great musicians.

THE REFERENDUM

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—The future of California almond growing was written in large letters when President Harding signed the permanent tariff bill carrying import duties of four and three quarters cents per pound on almonds in the shell and fourteen cents a pound on shelled almonds, thus giving 100,000 acres of California's almond orchards new opportunity to live against the blasting competition of the peasant orchards of Europe. Although the California Almond Growers Exchange which inaugurated the tariff fight and carried it through two years of bitter battle against the massed millions of eastern confectioners and importers had asked for a minimum rate of five and fifteen cents, the compromise rate written in the bill represents such a slight difference that it is a distinct victory for the Exchange.

It is freely admitted in Washington that the almond industry of the state would have received no real protection had it not been for the Exchange and its unrelenting organized, persistent presentation of facts, figures and necessities to congress, day in and day out, for two long years. If there are any almond growers in California who are not members of the Exchange this tariff victory should serve to convince them of their first duty of gratitude is to the Exchange.

Disinterested observers in Washington, newspaper men and others who have watched many tariff battles have characterized the almond growers tariff fight as one of the greatest single-handed victories within their knowledge. "Neither you nor your almond growers will ever know the full extent of the economic and political pressure brought against you," said one observer, in close touch with affairs here. "The new almond tariff duties will give tremendous impetus to the almond growing industry in California there can be no doubt. Its effect may not be felt this year but the years to come will show their stabilizing results and the boon won by the Exchange for its members."

The political fortunes, too, of both of California's senators, Hiram W. Johnson and Samuel M. Shortridge and of all the representatives from California ought to rest easily upon their accomplishments not only in almonds but in other products.

That they may be committed to an unending public memory, let them here be set down as follows: Charles F. Curry, Clarence F. Lea, John E. Baker, Julius Kahn, John I. Nolan, H. E. Barbour, A. F. Free, Walter F. Lindeberger, Henry Z. Osborne and Phil D. Swing.

To the newspapers of California should go, too, the eternal gratitude of the farmers and the general public for the full-hearted support they gave throughout the fight without recompense. It constituted a high public service which can only be rewarded in part by their participation in the general prosperity which will ensue.

Watch California's almond industry—it has been reborn.

CALIFORNIA ALMOND GROWERS' EXCHANGE.

BURBANK KIWANIS CLUB TO ELECT OFFICERS

Business Session Slated at Elizabeth Hotel Tuesday Noon

The first business session of the newly organized Burbank Kiwanis club will be held at noon Tuesday at the Elizabeth hotel. Officers will be elected, committees will be appointed and other work accomplished.

The temporary officers of the organization are Harry B. Watson, president; Tony Geare, treasurer, and Ted Cove, secretary.

Each of these three men are well qualified for their respective offices and it is generally believed that they will be chosen as permanent officers.

Members of the antarctic expedition commanded by Sir Ernest, which left England on board the Quest, are shown in front of their leader's grave at South Georgia, a barren group of islands in the South Atlantic. This is the first photograph of the noted explorer's final resting place to reach this country.

THE EVENING STORY

(Copyright, 1921, by W. Werner)

MRS. POTTER'S PORCH

Mrs. Potter sat alone on her great east porch. She had said to herself that afternoon that she would sit on the porch whether she wanted to or not. "I feel like a cat in a strange garret," she said to herself, "but I must make myself sit here occasionally."

The east porch was like a great room. Every spring Tim Noble, the man of all work, brought out the wicker furniture, chairs and settees and tables and baskets filled with ferns, the charming straw rugs and the green shades that a touch could roll or unroll. Mary, Tim's wife, directed his movements. She had been with Mrs. Potter so long that she knew exactly how the old lady liked things. Then, after the great porch was garnished and made ready for occupation, Mary and Tim went away and left it empty.

If it had been the only porch on the house Mrs. Potter might have used it, but she had a delightful little porch on the west side, where she spent a great deal of time. The west porch just suited her, for it looked on the flower garden and the vegetable garden, where she could watch Tim working. Then, too, it was quite near Mary's kitchen, and when Mrs. Potter was tired of reading or crocheting, for she sat nearly all day long, she could listen to Mary singing in her rich contralto voice, which was never loud enough to be annoying: "Light on the River."

"Oh dear," said Mrs. Potter fretfully, "I don't like it here one bit. I feel as if I was shut up in the world alone. There's nothing to see but the street."

The street was Pine street, and Mrs. Potter had never liked Pine street. There were so many young people and children on it. Young people and children make noise, and Mrs. Potter did not like noise. When she was on her little porch she did not know that Pine street existed.

Perhaps, too, she forgot what might have troubled her conscience—that all the houses on Pine street were very poor and crowded and small, except hers. Once, indeed, her father had owned all that street. It had been a long field, but when the town began to grow he saw that he could make a great deal of money by cutting the land up into lots and selling it. So that was how Mrs. Potter got a great deal of money—money enough, indeed, to build the great white house where she lived and the bulging porches and the gardens behind it, to set the shade trees and pay for the beautiful noiseless car in which Tim Noble took her to ride every pleasant day, and many other things which poor people think are the happy heritage of the old and rich. Yet, in spite of the fact that she owed so much to Pine street, Mrs. Potter had never done anything for it. She merely forgot it by retiring to the back of her house.

Motorists gazed at the tiny old woman sitting alone on the great porch, and Mrs. Potter felt the reproach of their eyes. It was as if they said to her: "Why, you poor lonely old woman! What do you need of that beautiful porch? Don't you know that it was made for children to play on and young people to dance on?"

Mrs. Potter began to long very much to go back to her own cozy nook, but she had come out here to stay, and stay she would. So she turned her chair round and stared at the wall of the house. She had a book, but she could not read. Presently she became aware that she was accompanied by somebody who had arrived very softly footed. She turned and stared down into the face of a small boy who was leading a still smaller boy by the hand. Unmistakably they were brothers, and apparently they were not daunted by old ladies with sharp eyes.

"How do you do?" said the older boy.

"How do you do?" replied Mrs. Potter. "Who are you anyway?"

"My name is George William Warner, and this is my brother, Little John." George William was pale and grave eyed and he spoke with a lisp. "Little John is very shy," he elucidated further.

"Shy? Is he?" Mrs. Potter said. "Well, what have you come for? What do you want?" She thought: "It proves that I mustn't try to sit here. I'll be pestered to death if I do."

"It's so hot," said George William with a sigh. He pushed back his thick, fair hair from his damp forehead. "It's very hot on our porch. We haven't any nice things to keep the sun out." He glanced at the shades. "I just thought maybe you wouldn't mind if we came over here for a little while. If your head aches we won't make any noise. Mother's head aches often, and we never make any noise then."

"You're a great talker," said Mrs. Potter. "Your mother is the Mrs. Warner who sews, isn't she?"

George William nodded, but Little John piped up: "Father's dead."

"Sh-sh!" chided George William. "You mustn't speak so loud, Little John."

Mrs. Potter was uncomfortable. She thought: "If I let them play here it will bring others. And yet why shouldn't I? These little boys look pale. It's the heat, I suppose. Yes, it must be very hot over there. I'm sure it's cool here. I feel almost too cool." She said: "Yes, you can stay here and play. But go over in that corner, where you won't bother me."

They went over in the corner, and she tried to forget them, but she could not. She found herself turning her chair to observe them. Somehow they seemed better to belong to the porch than she did. It did them more good than it was doing her, for George William grew rosy as his flesh cooled and he began to laugh with enjoyment. Yet all in the world that he and Little John did was to sit flat on the floor and roll a small ball back and forth.

Somewhere back in Mrs. Potter's life there had been a small boy with fair hair and blue eyes. She thought of him now wistfully. If he had lived she might not have been sitting today alone upon her great porch. "I don't like this place," she thought. "I'll go back to my nook." So she arose and stole away.

It was very pleasant on the west porch. She could see Tim Noble working and hear Mary singing. Suddenly, Mary's singing ceased. She had gone somewhere. But she returned immediately. "Mrs. Potter," she said, "do you know that there are two little boys playing ball on the east porch?"

"Are they?" returned Mrs. Potter. "I daresay they will do no harm. Let them stay." Mary looked mystified. "Mary," went on Mrs. Potter, "I wish you'd let it be known that the Pine street children can play on the porch if they want to, and that their mothers can come there, and the young people can dance there evenings if they choose. I shall never know it back here." Mary stared blankly. "You hear me, Mary? It's very hot weather. Don't wait about letting them know."

"Land's sake alive!" murmured Mary, as she moved away. "The old lady has had a change of heart, I do believe."

A week later Mrs. Potter and Mary gazed at the moonlight in her garden. From the other side of the house came sounds of music and the noise of young people who were dancing to a phonograph—her own phonograph, which she had Tim Noble wheel there. "What a good time they must be having," she said to herself. "I dare say sixty couples could dance there without being crowded. I'm glad I'm letting the east porch do some good. But for me this is best."

MINOT, N. D. PICNIC CALLED

There will be a picnic of former Minot, N. D. people held at Bixby Park, Long Beach, on Sunday afternoon, October 8, from 2 to 4 o'clock. All Minoters are urged to notify their former townsmen of the event and ask them to pass the word along so that all may have notice of this reunion. It is proposed to organize a California Minot society and hold these functions at various times and places throughout the year. There are many Minoters in Los Angeles, Long Beach, Glendale and other adjoining cities.

MEXICO
produced the largest quantity of silver in 1920. It amounted to $67,955,501.

ANVIL OF GOD'S WORD DESCRIBED BY DR. FUNK

"The Anvil of God's Word" was the subject by Dr. Funk at the First Lutheran church, yesterday, celebrating the four hundredth anniversary of Luther's first translation of the Bible.

The text was taken from the 119th Psalm, at the 130th verse, "The entrance of Thy Word giveth light."

"The dauntless stand of the hero of the Reformation on October 31, 1517, was duly celebrated by eighty million Lutherans five years ago. The nailing of the ninety-five theses on the door of the Castle church at Wittenberg was the enlightening event that shook all Europe to its center. Because of this heroic stand, and the mighty achievements resulting therefrom, Luther has been rightly acclaimed as the greatest man in modern history."

"We come at this time, however, to celebrate an event even more worthy of praise for our hero and gratitude to God for the benefits bestowed. Four hundred years ago, on September 21, 1522, Dr. Luther completed his first translation of the New Testament. No little enthusiasm was aroused by this wonderful accomplishment, for the 3,000 copies of the first edition were sold in a few days. You know enthusiasm and emotionalism are not one and the same thing."

"In the matter of temperament in religion we occupy the position of a golden mean. A good Lutheran may have all the warmth of the most ardent Methodist, the staid high church character of the Episcopalian, and in addition he may enjoy a beautiful spirit of true devotion that is peculiarly his own."

"The Lutheran church numbers in her fold the most profound theologians in the world; she was born in a university; yet her faith, as expressed in her hymnology and liturgical gems of devotion, is as simple as a child's. These rites, ceremonies and festivals are essential to the development of our religious life. In our recent studies of the children of Israel in the Bible school, we learned that in the re-establishment of the people the erection of an altar and rebuilding of the temple were given the first consideration."

"I am told that in a certain Russian palace there are 860 portraits of beautiful maidens. These paintings were executed by Count Rotari for the empress, Catherine the second. This eminent artist traveled through 50 provinces to find his models. When the work was completed the discerning eye noted that each portrait contained some delicate reference to the empress; some feature, accomplishment, trait of character, jewel, or favorite flower."

"The artist proved himself a loyal subject, and shall we be less loyal to Him in whom all things center, the fairest among ten thousand, the bright and shining star, who is revealed to us in the Word of God?"

A week later Mrs. Potter and Mary gazed at the moonlight in her garden. From the other side of the house came sounds of music and the noise of young people who were dancing to a phonograph—her own phonograph, which she had Tim Noble wheel there. "What a good time they must be having," she said to herself. "I dare say sixty couples could dance there without being crowded. I'm glad I'm letting the east porch do some good. ## CITY HALL MEN'S BIBLE CLASS SESSION

The study at the Men's Bible class in the city hall yesterday, follows:

In the eleventh chapter of John's Gospel we have the remarkable story of Jesus' visit to Bethany and the raising of Lazarus from the dead. The raising of Lazarus was manifestly intended to give the Jews incontrovertible proof that He was the Christ. Perhaps, also, it was to prepare their minds for His own resurrection. When His own grave should be found empty, they would not be able to say that His resurrection was impossible. The fact that in that very year, within two miles of Jerusalem, a man who had been dead four days had been restored to life, would silence all such talk.

The strange thing about the story is that it says when Jesus heard of Lazarus' sickness He abode two days where He was. Sometimes the promises of Christ seem utterly to fail. Everything becomes a perplexing riddle until events make it plain. Jesus lingered because He loved them. The time we set for Him to act is usually the worst time. It is hard for us to learn that delays are not necessarily denials. They are to enlarge our capacity to receive. Therefore we should let nothing shake our confidence in His love, but come what may, we should commit ourselves to Him without misgiving.

When Jesus reached Bethany, Lazarus had lain in the grave four days. Martha met Him to say that if He had come more promptly her brother would not have died. Jesus assured her that Lazarus was to rise from the dead. We never read that death was permitted to exercise its power before the face of Christ.

Jesus' promise is, "Whosoever liveth and believeth in Me shall never die." It should be noticed that the destiny depends upon believing in Him while He lives.

Coming to the home at Bethany, Jesus found a company of Jews waiting in sympathy for Mary and Martha, and even Mary and Martha were unable to comprehend the promise of Christ that Lazarus was to be raised. We are told that Jesus wept. Some tell us that it was out of sympathy for Mary and Martha, but why should He be sorrowful when He knew that Lazarus was to come forth in a few minutes? Others say they were tears of regret for Lazarus, that he was to be summoned back to the conflicts and trials of life from that blessed and, it is certain that if we knew the bliss beyond compare into which our sainted loved ones have gone, we would rejoice with joy unspeakable and not wish them back.

Others say Jesus wept because of His divine foreknowledge of all the sorrow and sadness which would be in the world through death and sin until His coming, even among His own choice friends. He may have wept also because of their persistent refusal to believe His word that He was to raise Lazarus from the dead. Twice the record tells us that Jesus groaned and finally He said to Mary and Martha: "Said I not unto thee that if thou wouldst believe, thou shouldst see the glory of God?" Jesus never groaned over His own griefs and pains. He did groan over the folly and unbelief of men. He wept over Jerusalem because they would not believe His word. Perhaps the persistent unbelief here of His beloved friends helped to draw the tears.

Mary and Martha reminded Christ that it was of no use to go to the grave for decomposition had already set in. The rabbis taught that the spirit wandered three days seeking readmission, and abandoned the body the fourth day when decomposition set in. But when it is too late for man, it is early yet for Christ. With a loud voice Christ called Lazarus forth and the identical individual that had died, came back and the spirit again joined the body. It was not the final glorified body for it was raised a natural body. Lazarus died again and will be given an immortal body incapable of death.

SCOUT TROOP NO. 3 HEARS GOOD NEWS FROM SANDERS

Glendale troop No. 3, Boy Scouts, is to be sponsored by the chamber of commerce, according to official announcement made last Friday evening at the troop meeting which was held in the Central avenue school, by E. F. Sanders, assistant secretary of the chamber of commerce.

The committee appointed by the chamber of commerce to supervise the troop and furnish leadership consists of George B. Carr, E. F. Sanders, C. B. Elliot, and Frank C. Ayars, retiring Scoutmaster of the troop. The troop consists of about 28 Scouts, and one of the first problems of the troop committee is to secure a scout leader to take the place of Mr. Ayars, who was forced to resign because of business interests.

The boys were very enthusiastic over the announcement of the chamber of commerce to sponsor the troop and that they would do everything possible to make the chamber of commerce proud of their proteges.

THE MOCKERY OF GREAT RICHES

When you have saved a dollar up to ask Your girl to have ice cream and she goes past With some one else your money seems to be Only a source of hollow mockery. You worked so hard to get it and you thought Of all the handsome things you would have bought For her with it and now your dream is done And you would sooner be most anyone You chance to meet who maybe has much less For riches do not bring you happiness.

You never thought when you were saving up The dimes you got for finding some lost pup Or shucking corn or many other things That having so much money often brings You only disappointment and you might As well have spent it as you went with light And happy heart. You might as well have had

A dozen things with it to make you glad For now when you have saved it up you find That she is false and that your love is blind.

I never knew before how it must feel To be a millionaire and eat oatmeal And nothing else at all because although You're rich your stomach's all played out, you know. I thought a dollar all at once would make Us both so happy when I'd go and take Her to the candy store and proudly say: "Buy what you please—I've got the price to pay." O cruel, cruel fate and hard that when You've reached the top just knocks you down again!

Later Opening for B. B. Season

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Opening dates for the major league pennant races are to be moved forward a week, it is understood from reliable information.

The club owners are prepared to vote favorably at the winter meetings on a resolution to have the season opened around April 17, one week later than in past seasons.

As usual, the club owners are inspired by a purely commercial motive. The bad weather of early April has caused them so many postponements and such poor attendance that an early opening has been declared bad business.

The magnates persist in vigorously sweeping around the corners when the broom could be used most advantageously in the middle of the room.

Rumors coming out of the last dual-league meeting in Chicago have it that some changes to make the pitching rules less drastic may also be enacted at the winter meeting.

Heard during the recent junior track and field championships at Newark:

A trainer: "That boy over there jumping is a comer and he wants to go to college. Know any place?"
Close conversation between the trainer and a well known coach. The trainer: "Naw, he's got two better offers'n that."
The w. k. coach: "Tell him not to be in a hurry."

Jack Curley has been spending most of the summer around popular French summer resorts. The American wrestling boss has been doing other things besides looking over the European skill and bone crushers, according to reports. He was seen much in the company of George Carpentier and it is rumored that he had the Frenchman's name on a contract to do some fighting in the United States next summer.

In these days of the waning prestige of Yale and Harvard on the gridiron, it has been generally accepted that the Yale-Harvard game has been made the leading contest of the year because of tradition.

The Yale-Harvard battle and the classic Army-Navy contest will be fought this year on the same date, November 25.

It will be interesting to see which game gets the preference.

"Luck and all the breaks" is the usual cry when a player is successful in winning any of the big golf championships.

While it is appropriate in some cases, it cannot be applied to Jesse Sweetser, the new amateur golf champion.

Any player who is good enough to win in a row from Willie Hunter, former British champion; Jesse Guilford, last year's American title holder; Bobby Jones, one of the greatest, and Chick Evans, close to the greatest, is a golfer.

Sweetser did that. If there was any luck in that accomplishment he has the market cornered.

Walter Hagen, the British open champion, and Gene Sarazen, who holds the American open and the P. G. A. championships, are to meet in October for the unofficial title of world's champion. Sweetser would be a mighty sweet third entry and the crown for the winner would be less unofficial.

"MISS AMERICA" TO ENTER MOVIES

Miss Mary Katherine Campbell

Miss Mary Katherine Campbell, who as "Miss Columbus" won the first prize and became "Miss America" at the National Beauty Show in Atlantic City, N. J., has arrived in New York for a movie tryout.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK—

By E. R. WAITE
Secretary Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce

THAT time spent reading the advertisements in your newspapers is time well spent.

THAT the shortest route between the buyer and the seller is via the advertising columns of your newspapers. THAT it is not what some people think, it is what they do that counts.

THAT if you intend living your life out in the present generation, replan your affairs on the new basis of operation, then get busy. Keep up the date.

THAT to own your home is a pleasure you owe yourself, and a protection you owe your family.

THAT you should keep your eyes wide open. You know not when opportunity will come. In fact, it is in your city now, for those who can see it.

THAT some cities need more attention to business and less oratory, more application of business principle to affairs concerning their city and less devotion on the part of some of its citizens to self-glification.

THAT some citizens need to boost their own cities more than they do. Many times they take too much for granted and in many cases, carelessly ignore them. They rush miles away in cars and by train for a holiday, and then come home and tell their friends about the wonderful city they visited.

THAT to appreciate nature and its wonders, they need not travel farther than the district surrounding their own home city. Know your city and county better, then Boost Your Own City and County First.

EPWORTH LEAGUE PENNY SOCIAL ANNOUNCED

The Epworth League of the Pacific Avenue Methodist church is entertaining Friday night of this week with a Penny Social. The affair will be held in the social hall of the church beginning at 8 o'clock. Those who are not on time will be fined.

There will be many concessions such as an Art Gallery, Fashion Review, Animal show, and other booths containing good "eats."

As this is a Penny affair, there should be a good attendance and a good time is promised all.
